Sbongile's School life

Sbongile is a South African girl who goes to Ellerton primary school.

Ellerton is near the beach at Sea Point, a long way from Sbongile's home. Sbongile's mother wakes her up at 4.30 am, so she can be picked up for the journey to school at 5.50 am. A driver collects 16 children from their houses. Sbongile is the first one he collects, She gets up to school at 7.30 am.

She always takes her books, pencils, and reading books to school. Sometimes she also takes sandwiches, tuna and processed meat or cheese and bacon and eggs. Once in while her mother gives her money to buy a pie or a *samosa from the tuck shop.

There are 23 children in her class. They are lucky because in some classes there are about 40. They usually sit in groups of six. Sometimes they make snacks in class. In Music they sing songs. They also do computers and art and have library lessons. In summer they swim in the school's swimming.

There is an assembly once a week where the children sing their school songs and the national anthem.

Lesson include Maths, English, Afrikaans, Science and History. Sbongile loves dancing African music. The school is decorated with bright murals made by the pupils and the school building looks very attractive.
